He added in the speech that Ministries that have been tasked with setting standards to look at this in a mission mode, to implement quality standards both in India and for the import of goods equally, We provide national treatment both to Indian goods and to imported goods and to ensure that we as a nation resolve and decide that we are going to upgrade ourselves to meet international quality standards. A short example that I can share with you is the case of point of the newsprint industry.

Every time I would get complaints that we do not get newsprint in India, therefore, we have to import it. But domestic capacities under utilise. Therefore, we have to try and put some duties or restrict the import of newsprint. Newsprint industry says we have the quality that is required, we are making it. The buyer says but we do not get the quality that is required for our fast speed machines. And then you go into the detail of the problem and you realize that we in India have underrated our standard. We have not aligned ourselves with international standard of newsprint and landed up in a situation that while we feel that there is domestic capacity, it is making newsprint. It offers the various gages of newsprint that is required. But the reality is that newsprint is not comparable to international standards. Therefore, cannot be used in the machines which require a certain quality of newsprint or newspaper (paper that goes into the printing of newspapers) and you are in the lagam. The current standard is being met. But it is not the standard that is required by the buyer. And I would suspect this is one case that has been brought to my attention only recently it may apply in many other
